The accrual principle states that revenue should be recognized when it is earned, and expenses should be recognized when they are incurred, regardless of when cash is received or paid. This principle provides a more accurate picture of a company's financial position during a specific period.

- Revenue Recognition: Revenue is recorded when the goods or services are delivered, not necessarily when cash is received.

- Matching Principle: Expenses are matched to the revenues they help generate within the same period.

Consistency Principle

The consistency principle emphasizes that once an organization adopts a particular accounting method, it should continue using it in subsequent periods. This consistency allows for meaningful comparisons over time.

- Facilitates analysis of financial statements across periods.
- Reduces confusion and enhances comparability.

Going Concern Principle

This principle assumes that a business will continue to operate indefinitely unless there is evidence to the contrary. It influences how assets and liabilities are valued and reported.

- Assets are recorded based on their cost, not liquidation value.
- Financial statements are prepared with the expectation of ongoing operations.

Economic Entity Assumption

The economic entity assumption separates the business's financial activities from those of its owners or other entities.

- Ensures that personal and business transactions are kept distinct.
- Facilitates accurate financial reporting.

Monetary Unit Assumption

This principle assumes that all financial data should be measured in a stable currency, making it possible to compare financial information over time.

- Eliminates the effects of inflation or deflation in financial statements.
